We would like to welcome Rabia Khalid to the EDIT Collaboration Study team. Rabia is a clinical dietitian with a background in research. She will be undertaking a PhD as part of the EDIT Collaboration aiming to examine the pathways of eating disorder development in individuals with overweight or obesity during weight management therapy. Rabia will lead the deconstruction of interventions, contribute to examining predictors of eating disorder risk through IPD meta-analyses, and work to inform a model describing the intersection between individual characteristics, weight management strategies and eating disorder risk.

Data sharing to begin between September and November 2022

Data sharing will occur using a staged approach. We will pilot the process with a subset of trials, before inviting all trials to share data.

EDIT Annual Collaborator Forum – save the date!
